FAROE ISLANDS: Mítt alfagra land (My land, oh most beautiful)

The Faroe Islands (meaning "Sheep Islands") are a group of eighteen islands in the north Atlantic Ocean between Scotland and Iceland. Only one of the islands remains uninhabited. The population of the Faroes is largely descended from Viking settlers who arrived in the 9th century. The Faroe Islands have been connected politically to Denmark since the fourteenth century but since 1948 have had self-government in almost everything except matters of defence and foreign affairs.

The words of the Faroese national anthem were written by Simun av Skarøi (1872 -1942) who was a Faroese poet, politician and teacher. He founded Føroya Fólkaháskúli (the Faroese folk high school) in 1899, and worked there as head teacher from 1899 for the rest of his life - about 43 years.

Petur Alberg, the composer of the music, was born in Tórshavn (Faroe Islands) and spent most of his life there. Sólvor Henriksen, of the National library of the Faroe Islands writes that, "Around the year 1900, Alberg started to play the violin, which began his career as a composer and songwriter. As well as the national anthem of the Faroe Islands, Alberg composed other choral works. His songs are still well known on the Islands. At the age of 23 he went to Norway to study painting. Later in life, he became a writer of the journal Baldursbrá."

The national anthem "Mítt alfagra land" is often known as "Tú alfagra land mítt", for these are the words of the first line.
